Pizazz. Vivaciousness. Enthusiasm. Diversity. These were the things that gave us our sparkling personalities and made our school such an exciting place to be. Everyday, the halls and classrooms were filled with the life and action of all different types of people. Jocks, beauty queens, nerds, scholars—we had them all, and their blending created an atmosphere that was truly Odessean.

The wide range of interests among our student body inspired involvement in many different activities, from dart club to weight lifting, the drill team to basketball. Our participation in the varied fun and competitive groups offered fostered the development of well-rounded individuals; not only did we learn Math and English, but also how to get in on the action and enjoy life.

Yes, diversity was something that we never lacked. Sometimes that diversity caused conflicts, but it mainly served as a bonding force that made us Odessa-Montour.
